Dedication.

To the Business Men of Indianapolis,

President, Directors and Members of the Chamber of Commerce:

GENTLEMEN—To you I dedicate this volume, and claim you as my patrons; it is you who have developed the great resources of this beautiful city; it is you who have given it reputation abroad and prosperity at home; you have made it also famous for its hospitality, and the merchant, trader, traveler and stranger feel conscious when they enter Indianapolis that there are warm hearts and friendly hands to welcome them.

To you, Gentlemen, I respectfully dedicate my first annual Director.

BRYANT, STRATTON & SPENCER,

INTRODUCTORY.

In laying before the public our first Director to the people and institutions of the city of Indianapolis we feel constrained to call attention to the many obstacles that have interfered with its progress, and to which may be charged any errors or defects which may have crept into its compilation; and, also, to point out the importance of the information collected, which renders it of great value. An examination of this volume will better convey a proper idea of its importance to the residents of Indianapolis, and the amount of labor necessary to prepare it for the press, than any particular description of its contents which might be given here. Attention is called to the following array of facts:

The canvassing for the Director commenced about the first of September last, but, owing to the re-numbering of the places of business and residences of the citizens, the entire ground had to be gone over the second time, in order that the work might correctly give the new system, and we are now able to offer the result in a volume of over four hundred pages, containing nearly fifteen thousand names, and nearly five thousand increase over last year, in addition to a full and carefully arranged Classified Business Directory and an Appendix of the various Societies, Banks, Churches, Public Buildings, Schools, &c., &c.

To collect this vast amount of information, to arrange it all in systematic order, put it in type, and publish it in book form, every one must admit is a work of no inconsiderable amount of labor. In the preparation and compilation of a Directory, it is necessary to take the information afresh every year, and to make as near a perfect work as possible, requires the systematic co-operation of a large body of competent and intelligent hands. Those only who have participated in the labor can form any adequate idea of the many vexations and perplexities connected with it, and to which the compilers are subjected. The present volume is entirely original in its production, the information having all been obtained by actual canvass. The importance of the work will be readily conceded by all who have occasion to use it; and its cheapness must be as manifest as its usefulness, except, perhaps, to those who imagine it to be their duty to pick out all the little errors they can find, and exaggerate their importance. It is by this class of people that the many formidable and embarrassing obstacles are thrown, and which help to render the work imperfect. They not only refuse to give the names and necessary information, but are the first to complain of any inaccuracies that may occur. It would be an almost endless task to describe the capricious opposition with which we have to contend in obtaining the information required to make the work as correct as we aim to make it, or to give a tolerable idea of the ridiculous and annoying criticisms to which we are afterwards exposed.

The great majority of the community, we are happy to say, obligingly gave to our canvassers all the information they required. There are, however, some few exceptions. For instance, Mr. Auchmuty not only refused to give the required particulars about himself, but positively forbids the insertion of his name and residence in the Directory. No doubt Mr. A. has very cogent reasons for wishing to remain incog., and to keep his whereabouts a profound secret. It is our business to have his address in the Directory, and if we do not obtain it from him, we must from some one else. Hence the error, possibly, in the spelling, or correct business, or profession to which he belongs.

Mr. Bullen has a similar desire to keep himself out of the Directory—or, at least, feigns to have—and when the work appears, forgetting his little eccentricity in denying the anxiously sought information, he boils over with indignation because his name does not figure in its pages.

Mr. Cowdrey, who fills the useful and honorable position of a clerk, insists on being inserted as "a gentlemen;" and, as might be expected of persons of such ambitious aspirations, is extremely abusive because he cannot be gratified. But, it being the object of the Directory to give the sternest facts, and to repress all flights of the imagination, Mr. C. has to figure in its pages simply as a clerk, until he can establish his claim to some other designation

Mr. Durdevant wishes his name inserted in a manner peculiar to himself, and particularly bothering to every body else. But the Directory being the most democratic of all human institutions, Mr. D. must take his place on the dead level with the whole community, as he cannot distinguish himself by any such device.

Mr. Errower has his little peculiarities, and amiably declines furnishing any information about himself unless he can be allowed at least half a page to spread himself in with miscellaneous items about his business. But E.'s economical ideas of advertising have to be nipped in the bud.

Mr. Flugelhauser is frugal in an opposite direction, and forbids any mention of his business.

Mr. Ganymede cannot understand what right any one can have to know where he resides, and will not divulge the fact. He thinks it a piece of impertinence to publish a Directory at all.

Mr. Holofernes is horrified at the omission of his place of residence, regards it as "a perfect outrage," and has no doubt it was done on purpose to annoy him.

Mr. Ignusfatius is slightly insane on the subject of his first name. He objects vehemently to the insertion of anything more than the initials, because there happens to be two or three more persons who are called Isaac besides himself.

Mr. Jacoby objects to advertisements in the Directory, and can't see what they are put in for.

Mr. Kerdusenhouser, contrawise, likes advertisements, and considers them a pleasant and valuable feature of the work.

Mr. Lilliputian, with the lofty tone of a critic, pronounces the work full of blunders, and, being requested to designate them, is unable to point out even one.

Mr. Mephistophiles, being of a mirthful disposition, gives the canvasser who calls upon him a direction, which, if followed, would subject us to a libel suit.

Mr. Nondescript, who resides in the city, when called upon at his place of business, gives an out-of-town residence, under the delusive idea that he will thereby escape jury duty and taxation.

Mr. Obaque desires the canvasser to call again, having no time to attend to him, and the canvasser forgetting to do so, Mr. O. threatens a suit for damages because he is left out.

Mr. Pillicoddy lives in a "place" that has no legalized existence. The name of the street he lives on not being odorous, he wishes to get rid of it without removing, and ingeniously calls the street a place, and is indignant because we disregard it and give the proper name.

Mr. Quintessimal is queer, and thinks it a good joke to impose upon the canvasser by giving the names of two or three fictitious occupants of his house, that he may afterwards be "down" on the publication for committing such a blunder.

Mr. Rogueman adopts a very ingenious dodge to keep out of the Directory. Having yesterday given his name to the canvasser, he calls to-day to say that he is going out of town, and wishes to have his name omitted. But the next day the canvasser learns from his family that he has no idea of removing.

Mr. Socrates stigmatizes the work a humbug, and would not encourage such a thing by giving his name, etc., for the work.

Mr. Timon lives in a place which is part of a street, but insists on being located in the place. Now, the names of streets, places or squares, are not happily affairs of individual taste or caprice, but of legal enactments, and we only recognize legal designations in giving the residences of citizens.

Mr. Underhand enters our office—a particular personal friend of the publisher—and, presuming upon that relation, asks to have his name left out of the Directory to enable him to escape the annoyance of jury duty, etc. Being denied his unreasonable request, he makes his exit a declared enemy for life.

Mr. Vixon is violent for a different cause. He goes down to Twenty-first street to see a person whom the Directory informed him lived on that street, but finds that he has removed the day before to Stringtown. He stops at our office to "blow" us up for putting him to so much trouble, and to express his utter contempt for people who publish a Directory which only serves to mislead.

Mr. Whinglestopper, who, as a general rule, never buys a Directory, thinks the price altogether too high, and don't hesitate to express publicly his conviction that "'Taint worth more nor two bits."

Mr. Xavius is naturally a very extraordinary sort of person—takes the trouble of writing a sarcastic letter of three pages to say that, in his opinion, it is not the proper way to make a correct Directory purposely to leave out the name of one of the oldest residents in the city, since his name could easily have been learned by inquiring at his last place of business. This is a case which requires attending to, so we send down to Mr. X. the very canvasser who did inquire for him at his last place of business without being able to learn anything about him, whereupon the sarcastic Mr. X. confesses, without any sarcasm at all upon himself, that nobody is to blame.

Mr. Younglove takes the liberty of calling in person to expostulate on the names of so many old residents, who lived for years in the same houses, being omitted. Mr. Y. is informed that the old residents in question probably came a very old dodge, and gave the canvasser some fictitious names instead of their own. Oh! ah! indeed! Mr. Y. "shouldn't wonder;" and that reminds him that the joint tenant of his own house did give the canvasser Mr. Y's name but withheld his own, sure enough.

Mr. Zenophon is zealously obliging. He is a member of a firm, the name of which he can't withhold because it is on the sign; but he positively and resolutely refuses to furnish any information whatever as to the names of the individuals which compose it, and defies all creation to compel him to.

These are but a few of the actual annoyances to which the compilers of a Directory are subjected. And here it may not be inappropriate to say, that the delay in the publication of this edition of the Director is in part owing to another work being published at the same time, and the consequent inability to expedite its printing as fully as was desirable. But for the future, we can promise that no such delays will occur.

Yet, in the face of all this opposition, the compiler is happy in the conviction that the book approximates as nearly to perfection and completeness as it is possible for any similar work to do. But that this Director is entirely free from errors, we do not claim. With the many difficulties that present themselves, as stated elsewhere—and that, too, without exaggeration—it would be preposterous to look for absolute perfection. Without any hesitation, however, we claim that our Director is the most complete and reliable ever offered to the public of Indianapolis.

The whole number of names in the book is 13,440, against 7,860 in the Directory for 1864, being an increase of 5,580 names, which, multiplied by the usually accepted average of a family,—4,—gives the increase in the population at 22,320 souls. The number of names in the book,—13,440,—by the same process, shows the population of Indianapolis to be 53,360 souls.

An examination of the advertising pages of the Director will convince the most skeptical of the importance of Indianapolis as a market. Her merchants have shown their enterprise, energy and liberality by advertising their business in the best medium extant,—a Business Directory. Artisans in every branch of mechanical art have also availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by this book to call attention to their wares and ask the public to grant them a share of their patronage; while Railroads and Insurance Companies are numerously represented in the same pages,—the one setting forth the facilities they offer to the traveling and freighting communities in all sections of the country, the other giving the terms upon which life and property are insured, and exhibiting the capital employed to pay all the claims that may be brought against them by owners of property who have suffered losses which are covered by their several policies. We also, in this connection, take pleasure in calling attention to the unique and superior manner in which the advertisements of our Director are displayed, and to the handsome style in which it is bound. Much more might be said of the book and its contents; but the limited space allotted to the Introductory compels a brevity too great for the merits of the work.

In this connection we cannot refrain from tendering our thanks to the good citizens generally for the kind manner in which our reporters and canvassers were received in their search after information and advertisements; but, to the Editors of the several newspapers, English and German, and other prominent citizens of Indianapolis, we are under the greatest obligations for the hearty manner in which they have seconded our efforts to give to the world at large a correct and reliable resume of the business and history of their city.

In conclusion, we announce to the business public, and to all others interested in the welfare of Indianapolis, that we design to make our Director one of the permanent institutions of the city; and as we purpose giving each year a more desirable and excellent book, not being obliged to contend against the multiplicity of difficulties thrown in our way this year, we expect to be liberally and heartily sustained in our efforts to advance the interests of the Metropolis of Indiana.

THE

RAILWAY,

Now Open to

LAWRENCE.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAY

Is now completed from ST. LOUIS TO KANSAS CITY (283 miles), where it makes connection with the UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY,

Of which there is finished and running 40 miles to Lawrence, making an all-rail route to that place. At Kansas City it also makes direct connection, both for passengers and freight, with steamboat running daily to and from Leavenworth City.

☞ This is now the direct route to LEAVENWORTH CITY and all points in Central and Southern Kansas, as well as Southern and Western Missouri, connecting by stage with all the prominent inland places in both States.

At ST. LOUIS, it connects with railways running to the East, North and South, and with Steamers for all points on Upper and Lower Mississippi.

The building of the UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY is progressing rapidly, and that road will soon be open for travel to TOPEKA—thus extending the all rail route to that point.

PROPRIETORS.

This Building, the largest Hotel edifice on the Continent,

Was erected in the years 1857 to 1863, by an association of St. Louis citizens, from whom it has since passed to the ownership of Henry Ames & Co.

DIMENSIONS.

The dimensions are 272 feet front, 227 deep, and 112 high, with six lofty stories exclusive of attic and basement stores.

PUBLIC APARTMENTS.

The public apartments are the Gentlemen's ordinary, 116 by 44 feet; Ladies' ordinary 65 by 44 feet; lower vestibule, 92 by 63 feet; upper vestibule, 62 by 43 feet; reading room, 98 by 30 feet; bar room, 60 by 41 feet; billiard room, 63 by 43 feet; ladies' drawing room, 40 by 30 feet, with others correspondingly spacious, including twelve parlors, all superbly furnished and frescoed.

Conveniences and Arrangements.

Five hundred chambers, single and in suites, are perfectly supplied for the comfort of guests, and unequalled for ventilation and light. Among numerous modern conveniences is a steam elevator exclusively for passengers' use. The arrangements of the culinary, laundry and general departments and appliances for conveying water and heat throughout the house, are of the most ample description and of the best approved patterns. Thirty thousand yards of fine carpeting, coveeing the corridors and floors, and the furniture and table ware were manufactured to order by celebrated European and Eastern manufacturers. Whole cost of the building, ground and furnishing $1,500,000. The lessees have had more than twenty years' experience in serving the public in their present vocation.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The City Schools are under the general management of a Board of three Trustees, elected by the Common Council, viz: Thomas B. Elliott, W. H. L. Noble and Clemens Vonnegut.

Mr. Elliott is President and Mr. Noble Treasurer of the Board.

Superintendent of Public Schools, and Secretary of the Board, A. C. Shortridge. The office of the Board of Education is in Vinton's Block, opposite the Postoffice.

There are nine school buildings—one in each ward—and thirty-four teachers, ncluding the teachers of music and gymnastics.

The schools are all graded in accordance with the most approved system of Common Schools, and in the progress and advancement of pupils, will bear favorable comparison with the best schools in the country.

In all, except the High School, the instructors are young ladies, educated to the profession of teaching. This is an anomaly peculiar to Indianapolis. In all other large towns, so far as we have observed, the Principals of the Grammar and Intermediate Schools are men. The success of these young women in the management of our schools has been so decided as to leave no wish to return to the old system. Their employment in all grades has ceased to be an experiment.

The Schools are divided into three departments: Primary, Intermediate and High School, with four grades in each department.

The Board of Trustees are now building two new school edifices, one in the eastern and one in the western part of the city. They are planned after the Boston Primary School buildings, and include all the modern improvements in ventilating, heating, lighting, &c.

These buildings will not cost less than $40,000, and will accommodate over one thousand pupils.

It is contemplated, as soon as possible, to build a central High School building, on the site of the present second ward building; also, a large building in the southern part of the city.

Every effort is made by the School Officers to give efficiency and success to the schools, and our citizens have reason to look with pride on our superior graded system as one of the most important elements of our present and future prosperity.

TAX PAYERS' ADVISER.

NATIONAL

TAX LAW.

The following important provisions of the new Internal Revenue Law are published for the information of our readers:

Every person, whether liable to taxation or not, must report, and it will be no excuse that they did not receive any notice. Assessments will be made on failure to report, and payments will be enforced as on judgments by default against all who fail to report on or before the first Monday in May of each year.

The penalties are twenty-five per cent. additional for all failure to report, and one hundred per cent. for false return; $1,000 fine and one year's imprisonment for false return or failure to obey assessor's summons (sec. 14 and 15), for doing business without license, $500 fine and two years' imprisonment (sec. 73), for failure to report, forfeiture of goods, etc.

INCOME TAX.

Incomes must be given in detail, as per schedule, which is not open to public inspection, and must be sworn to, and are subject to two rates of tax, 5 per cent. on all incomes over $600, and not exceeding $10,000, 10 per cent. on excess over $10,000. Thus on $10,000 net income the tax is $720; on $20,000, $1,720. Income from U. S. Securities and all other sources, and from any part of the world, of all persons residing here, whether citizens or not, and all citizens residing abroad, all profits from business, rent, net profit from real estate purchased within the year, stocks or other property, interest accrued if collectable, and all shares of gains in companies, etc., whether divided or not, etc., etc., are all alike taxable. Income in gold must be reported in currency value. The income is for the year 1864 from January 1st, to December 31st, and no losses since January 1st, 1865, must in any way be deducted from the income of 1864.

THE LEGAL DEDUCTIONS FROM INCOMES.

The deductions from the income are $600, but allowed only one in any family of parents and minor children. Amounts of tax legally withheld from dividends, etc., all national, State, county, and municipal taxes actually paid within the year; salaries over $600 in the U. S. service, from which the tax was withheld; rent of residence actually paid within the year; interest paid on any actual incumbrance on property yielding income, expenses of ordinary repair not exceeding the average of five years, and not including improvements or betterments, such as water rents, sewer assessments, or incumbrances on unproductive property held for increase of value. Consuls of foreign governments, not United States citizens, are exempt from tax on income from property in their own country, and from official emoluments, if their government give such exemption to our Consuls; but the carriages, plate, and income from property or business in this country are taxable. The governments giving such exemptions to our Consuls are understood to be those of [the different governments who give similar privileges to our consuls are here named] consuls of all other countries are liable to tax on their entire income, from property at home or here, and from their official emoluments.

LICENSES.

Pedlars will state whether he travels on foot or with horses, giving the number (goods forfeited if without licenses), what he sells, jewelry, or original packages of goods; pedlars must state their age, and if between 20 and 45, state where they are enrolled, or if exempted. Hotel and innkeepers state their rentals or the Assessor must estimate it (likely pretty high). Bankers state the amount of their capital. Dealers, pawnbrokers, cattlebrokers, producebrokers, auctioneers, photographers, butchers, builders, and contractors will state their estimated sales and contracts. Wholesale dealers the amount of their last year's sales. Assayers the estimated value of metals to be assayed; substitute brokers must report the number of substitutes procured and pay $10 per head and $100 license. All licenses given from May 1st, 1865, or the time business commences, to May 1st, 1866. All persons, except lawyers, physicians, surgeons, dentists, cattle brokers, horse dealers, auctioneers and pedlars, must transact their business or profession only at the places designated in the license, but persons moving or selling can transfer their license on application to the Assessor. For all persons, except lawyers, conveyancers, claim agents, patent agents, physicians, surgeons, dentists, cattle brokers, horse dealers and pedlars, one license will do for the firm. Every business requires a separate license, but bankers may act as brokers, horse dealers as livery stable keepers, lawyers as conveyancers and claim agents. Hotel keepers, wholesale and retail dealers, inn keepers, and eating-house keepers as tobacconists; wholesale and retail dealers and eating-house keepers as confectioners; wholesale and retail dealers as apothecaries, and butchers as retail dealers; distillers must give bonds.

Manufacturers of segars will hereafter be required to give a bond to comply with the law, and lottery dealers must give a bond to have their tickets stamped. After this date the general rate of tax on manufactures will be 6 instead of 5 per cent. Legacies and successions to real estate should be reported as they occur to the assessor. Manufacturers, auctioneers, brokers, slaughterers of cattle, railroad, steamboat, express and ferry boats, insurance, telegraph companies, and banks, and managers or owners of theatres, operas, lotteries and advertisements, must make monthly and quarterly returns. Parents, guardians, trustees, executors, etc., of minors under their care (if they fail to report themselves). All retu ns must be sworn to, and names and residence given in full. Those proposing to change their residences during the year, will so state, with the place (if known) to which they will remove.
